Fil-Am leader of LA gang gets 8 life terms, no parole

LOS ANGELES—A Los Angeles judge on Wednesday sentenced a Filipino-American leader of the Avenue B street gang to life in prison without parole to combined with eight murders and 10 attempted murders during a crime spree in mid-1990s.

"The sentence is staggering and bears repeating," Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Robert Perry said of the crimes that 37-year-old Marito Arlene Morales was convicted of.

Perry called Morales a "chameleon" for moving around and only one of his murder victims were that gang members while the rest of them he had killed were innocent, law-abiding citizens.

Morales was sentenced to eight consecutive life terms without parole for the murders, 10 consecutive 15 years to life sentences for the attempted murders, and six additional 300 years on weapons charges—also with consecutive parole.

But protests vs high oil prices cripple Angeles, Davao cities

By Inquirer Bureau

THE TRANSPORT strike called by militant groups to protest high fuel prices was hardly felt in Metro Manila, but it stalled traffic in Angeles City in Pangasinana province and major urban centers and provinces in Mindanao.

The Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) said Metro Manila was spared from any significant disruption in mass transport services as the United Organizations of Drivers and Operators Nationwide (Udop) limited their protest actions.

"This came would be done by the LTFRB-led operators of jeepneys and other forms of mass transport would lose their licenses to operate if the protest against high fuel prices resulted in commuters losing their means to get around the metropolis."

Commuters in Metro Manila were about their daily routine despite the "transport protest" organized by Udop.

The Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA) said the protest action did not paralyze transportation in the metropolis as other transport groups did not participate in the strike.

"The LTFRB is not really not their purpose for paralyzing transport system," MMDA chair Francis Salvador said. "They might just want to vent their grievances," he said.

P500-M fuel subsidy OK'd for jeepneys

By Marivic Baralona and Francisco A. Bautista

PRESIDENT Aquino yesterday approved a P500-million fuel subsidy to public utility jeepneys and tricycles to cushion the impact of the surge of fuel prices that has reduced the daily income of drivers.

The President announced the subsidy on the day militant transport workers staged a strike in various parts of the country, including Metro Manila, to protest soaring fuel prices.

'3 executed Pinoys should not be called OFWs'

MANILA—Consent with the families of the three Filipinos put to death in China for drug trafficking, a prominent agency leader yesterday said the term "OFW" for overseas Filipino workers should not be used to refer to the convicts.

Ateneo University president of Federal Association of Mass Worker Employees Inc., yesterday said Sally Villanueva, Karen Cardo and Elizabeth Banao, who were convicted of heroin trafficking on Wednesday, had no record of being OFWs.

"[They] were never hired by any legitimate agency [and] not working outside [and] working visa, and they were found in transporting illegal drugs by a Filipino resident operating an airplane. Filipino looking to make a quick buck."

Previously said in a statement, "It is an insult to the millions of OFWs all over the world to call these three OFWs as they had no intention to work in China and were merely convicted to travel as tourists in living conditions and lives."

Previously pointed out that in general OFWs had all the necessary documents to prove that they were legally hired to work at government-approved jobs, and that "in OFWs, they are ready to comply with the laws."

Dangerous radiation spreads 40 km from damaged nuke plant

NAKAZONO—A long-lasting radioactive cloud has been measured at levels that pose a long-term danger to one of 40 kilometers from the crippled Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Station, raising questions about whether Japan's evacuation zone should be expanded and whether the land might need to be abandoned.

The clouds, around 127, was measured in one village by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) on a recent morning. The standard that the Soviet Union used as a gauge to measure the amount of radiation had not been used for Fukushima.

The same incident was measured at another location at 40 km from the Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Station. The measurements, reported on Wednesday, would not be high enough to cause health problems, but they are considered dangerous for the general public designed to cut the risks of cancer.

While the current measured would not pose an immediate danger, the amount of radiation would be high to allow people to keep living there, according to

Ex-envoy to UN charged with graft

By Kristine L. Alon

THE OFFICE of the Ombudsman has brought criminal charges against Ambassador Lito B. Bata, the country's former envoy to the United Nations (UN), in connection with alleged irregularities in the repair of the consular residence in New York during his term. In two separate filings on March 29, the Office of the Special Prosecutor charged Bata with misappropriation of public funds and violation of the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act. Bata filed for the two criminal cases valued P79,000.

The fiscal anomalies occurred in two separate instances while Bata was the chief of mission at the UN, a post he held from 2003 to 2007, the Ombudsman said.

One of the cases stemmed from the repairs made in the official consular residence in New York City in 2005, which Bata occupied when he was the permanent representative to the UN, after the building was damaged by burst pipes.

According to the Ombudsman, Bata violated the anti-graft law by not obtaining a public bidding to procure the services for the project.

Down payment

Furthermore, Bata allegedly violated the procurement law when he made a down payment to the contractor for the repairs, amounting to 10 percent of the total cost of the repairs. The procurement law stipulates that the down payment should only be 15 percent of the contract price.

The Ombudsman also noted that the improvements made on the house did not follow the specifications.

Bata has denied all the charges. He said the contractor was chosen after a bidding process in which the bidder with the lowest price won the contract.

He claimed that the improvement of the residence was exempt from strict bidding requirements as the repairs "were urgently needed." He said the residence was being used as the headquarters for the Philippine campaign to lead the UN Security Council.

Bata is also accused of having incurred expenses for the damaged house and for the alleged loss of his wife's jewelry in 2006, amounting to $17,524.00, which he allegedly did not remit to the government, according to the Ombudsman.

Responding to Bata's wife, Maria, regarding the loss of the jewelry, Bata's lawyer, Francisco, said. According to the charges, Maria only sent a letter to the embassy claiming that her diamonds had been lost with the valuables.

This was the first time that Bata's family charged expenses from his UN posting. In 2007, the Bata and their daughter Maria (Martha B. Bata) were named in a civil suit filed in New York by a former maid.

Complaint: Martha Bata's former maid accused the family of withholding, forced labor, promises and violations of labor laws. She said she was overworked, unpaid and suffered mental stress while employed at the Bata household.

Last of SLEX toll hikes starts today

By Peter S. Moncelli

INTEGRIS will have to pay higher toll at South Lane Expressway (SLEX) starting today as the highway's operators implement the last of four adjustments to bring fees to government-approved levels.

This will be the last of four monthly toll adjustments implemented by South Lane Expressway Corp. (SLEX), the company that spent P1.6 billion to modernize SLEX and now operates the road.

Last December, the Toll Regulatory Board (TRB) approved an increase in tolls of 10% to about 300 percent of the previous rates that was set in the 1990s. But SLEX voluntarily raised rates only by 25% percent to soften the blow of higher taxes on motorists.

"For the past few months, our motorists have enjoyed discounted toll," SLEX president Jose David said in an interview.

The initial discount on tolls was an average of 13.4 percent. This was down to around 3 percent in February and 1 percent in the rest of March.

"Starting October, we will implement the rate approved by the government last year," he said.

This means SLEX may now charge P66 for Class 1 vehicles, P172 for Class 2, and P218 for class 3. This is from P76 for class 1, P151 for class 2 and P165 for class 3 vehicles at the start of the year.

David noted that the improvements due on SLEX, which used to be a pot-hole-ridden two-lane road but is now a "world-class" four-lane highway, justify the increase in rates.

Elegantly crafted down to the last detail.

UNJUST!-dear parents, that no fee should be imposed on graduating students, many parents complained in the Department of Education (DepEd) Division Office through the school charging graduation fees.

Ampatuan witness forgets resumé; trial is postponed

VICE-SENATE's hearing of the Maguindanao massacre trial was even to start next after a witness forgot his resumé. Judge Josefa Iñigo Reyes even cleared Nelson Padilla's testimony in April 6 after defense lawyers filed a motion to suppress his testimony.

"His opinion is not without any proof that you are an expert witness and you just forget the court to believe you," Reyes said in a court during his questioning of Padilla.

Padilla, a former battalion commander in the PRR, conducted the helicopter raid on 30 families and most fragments recovered from the bodies of eight massacre victims, including the wife of Maguindanao Gov. Zaldy Sison, including Padilla.

Both Reyes and Padilla should at the very least present to the court his resume and certificates of training and seminars he had attended.

Private prosecutor Harry Roque pointed out it was the first time the trial was postponed two days at a rate. Preliminary hearing did not pass during after the nation's legal officer set in strictly come down with the file.

UNDER RECEIVERSHIP

Banco Filipino was insolvent, says BSP

By Michelle K. Reyes

THE 2008-09 Philippine Heritage and Heritage Bank (PHB) was placed under receivership last March 17 because the bank had become insolvent and was believed to be incapable of meeting loans from financial services, says regulators.

The decision by a panel of judges in receivership came after the bank had failed to pay a bank holiday for three days and failure to service withdrawals.

This is the second time that PHB has been placed under receivership. The first time was in 1995, when it was also declared insolvent by regulators.

Poor condition

The BSP has declared its decision to close down PHB a pious ruse to prevent further damage to the bank's poor financial condition.

According to deputy governor Raula Espinosa, the head of the BSP's bank regulation unit, the amount of liabilities of the bank exceeded the value of its assets by 100 percent.

Moreover, Espinosa said, PHB had been posting net losses since 2000, and that its net losses averaged P2 billion a year since 2007.

Espinosa said PHB's poor financial condition could be partly caused by its stalled building program, which he said increased mismanagement by its officers.

The BSP noted that more than half, or P2.2 billion, of the P4-billion outstanding loans the bank had granted were to directors, officers, stockholders and related interests (LORIs). "Related transactions" are common in banks, but PHB's were excessive, it said.

The BSP also charges that lending to LORIs is a violation for such loans to be made without proper collateral.

PHB had been failing to collect prompt payments on loans it had extended, with past due loans accounting for 91 percent of outstanding loans, the BSP said.

Collection of loan payments is crucial for a bank's continuing ability to operate, the BSP said. This is because without sufficient liquidity, a bank would not be able to service withdrawals.

According to the BSP, PHB had also been taking deposit interest rates that were much higher than the industry average. While the higher interest rates attracted more deposits, paying high interest on deposits took its toll on the bank's financial condition.

In effect, what PHB did was to entice people to place deposits via high interest rates and then use much of the money lent to the bank's owners and officers, the BSP said.

PH denial

The bank has gone to court to contest its being placed under receivership. PHB vice chair Perfecto Reyes Jr. has denied that the bank was insolvent, claiming it has sufficient assets to cover its liabilities.

Reyes said PHB only suffered from an unusual spike in deposit withdrawals, which the bank could not immediately service.

PHB had asked for a P3-billion emergency loan from the BSP to temporarily address the problem, but was denied.

Reyes said PHB was a victim of minor setbacks, which led to the heavy withdrawals, and alleged that people from the BSP itself had to do with it.

The BSP has denied the accusation, saying that a common emergency loan to a bank would be contradictory to the BSP's mandate, which is to maintain stability in the banking sector, BSP sources said.

What is happening to PHB now is like a case of what happened to PNB 20 years ago.

In January 1991, the old central bank closed down PNB after declaring the entire bank insolvent.

In March 2001, the central bank decided to close down PHB in 1995, when it could not service withdrawals.

Now, 20 years after the high court decision, the state regulator and PHB are again engaged in a court battle over the bank's insolvency.

Dangerous radiation spreads

Isabelle Lyman, a senior scientist at the Union of Concerned Scientists, an American organization that is often critical of its nuclear safety plans.

Common persons in the environment, the containers, leaking half to strength every 30 years.

The OIA claimed that levels of contamination would considerably limit future plans. In a report said the measurements might represent a "hot spot" and might not be representative of larger areas, though that is not clear.

Lyman said that if a plume of contamination had drifted with the wind, a large amount could have been detected in one spot by a detector.

"I think it was surprising that there would be local concentrations that high," he said.

Expansion of area zone

Lyman proposed that Japan should expand the evacuation zone, now set at 31 kilometers, and that the OIA should release data on the contamination levels. He said that the OIA should release data on the contamination levels, but that there were currently no plans to expand the evacuation zone.

Land use was elevated up by accepting all the contamination data, or proving it was. And if that was not done, Lyman said, "It depends on the cost of decontamination and how much people are willing to spend."

Japan, experts noted, is far more clearly united than the United States, where a major earthquake in 1989 caused large areas.

The OIA, using a measure of radioactivity called the becquerel, found an amount as 2.7 million becquerels per square meter, the standard used at Chernobyl was 1.48 million becquerels.

Spring 4 reactors

Lyman said that the OIA should develop the operation of the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear plant, which was shut down for the first time since the earthquake in 1989 caused large areas.

The plant's operation, Tokyo Electric Power Co., acknowledged that it would never be able to restart.

Between Nov. 1, 2, 3 and 4, however, more than the plant was showing significantly higher levels of radioactive iodine than in recent days, Japan's nuclear safety agency reported on Thursday.

The level of radioactive iodine 131 in the waters off the Fukushima Daiichi plant rose to 4,333 times the statutory limit on Thursday and 11,000 times the limit on Friday, the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear safety agency said.

On Wednesday, Fukushima said at a news conference that seawater collected about 100 meters from the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear plant was found to contain iodine 131 at 1,250 times the safety standard.

On Tuesday, a test conducted near the Fukushima Daiichi plant showed 1,500 times the maximum level, and a test the day before showed 1,250 times the limit in seawater values from a monitoring station at the plant.

Continues leaking

The business risk is the possibility that contamination from the plant will continue to leak into the sea, which is a major concern.

Waste has been found in the sea, but it is not clear if it is a result of the Fukushima Daiichi plant or a result of the Fukushima Daiichi plant.

The Fukushima Daiichi plant has been shut down for the first time since the earthquake in 1989 caused large areas.

into the atmosphere. Their release also has set off levels of highly-contaminated water.

Iodine 131, one of the radioactive byproducts of nuclear fission, can accumulate in the thyroid and cause cancer, but it is not as dangerous as cesium 137, which is more dangerous.

It is not clear if the Fukushima Daiichi plant is leaking iodine 131 into the sea, but it is not clear if it is a result of the Fukushima Daiichi plant or a result of the Fukushima Daiichi plant.

MVP Olympics unites a diverse family in friendly, action-packed event

Samahang Matibay, Mas Matagumpay!

Seventeen companies under the leadership of Philippine's top businessmen Manny K. Pangilinan conceived from March 26 to March 27 at the vast grounds of Manila's main headquarters in Pasig City for a weekend of camaraderie and friendly competition at the 2nd MVP Olympics.

Following huge success last year, the 2011 MVP Olympics opened in a grand blast area (photo showcasing the contestants of the 17 participating companies going toe-to-toe in the various competitive games that included basketball, volleyball, badminton, table tennis, chess, billiards and futsal and field.

Apart from the main sporting events, also lined up were fun games, a talent show and cheering competitions.

The MVP Olympics is a signature event that participating companies eagerly await, a clash of skills that aims to bring out the best in the participants at the same time nurturing strong team spirit through healthy competition. Chairman of this year's MVP Cup is Manila Senior Vice President Alfredo S. Pustila.

Declared overall champion was Maybank, followed by PLDT at second place and MetLife at third place. Other participating companies were Smart Communications, Metro Pacific Investments Corp., Riverside Hospital, Makati Medical Center, Cardinal Sancho Hospital, e-PLDT, Devcon General Hospital, Lourdes Hospital, Team Talavera (MPTC-MPTDC-MNTO-TMNC), Glaxo King, Outback, Medquest / TVS, SPN Global Phils. and Philam Mining.

Through the games, MVP stressed a strong embodiment of excellence and victory in business, aims to cement his winning values to his family of companies.

Winning, of course, is not all that

The MVP Olympics is an annual event that celebrates the spirit of competition and teamwork. It is a chance for employees to showcase their skills and talents in a friendly and competitive environment. The event is organized by the MVP Sports Foundation and is a highlight of the company's social and sports programs.

is it. More than the competition, the Olympics is also an opportunity to unite an increasingly diverse group of companies. It consolidates organizational culture and ethics of MVP companies and makes them breathe a common corporate spirit and values. It reinforces the confidence of employees that they are a part of one culture - a culture of champions under the leadership of one of the pillars of Philippine business and patron of sports, Manny K. Pangilinan. The MVP games on sports is also mandated through the MVP Sports Foundation launched only this year. The foundation aims to promote and develop sports in the country, particularly in eight disciplines that include basketball, boxing, cycling, badminton, badminton, tennis, rowing and football.

With the annual games serving as the stage, MVP companies are bonded together towards a common goal - to achieve more while working as one. As the 2011 MVP Olympics slogan goes, "Samahang Matibay, Mas Matagumpay!"

Credit Suisse sets up stockbrokerage firm in PH

By Doreen C. Duran

First foreign company in a decade

GLOBAL FINANCIAL services group Credit Suisse has opened its stockbrokerage operations in the Philippines, becoming the first foreign group to enter the local equities brokerage business in a decade.

Credit Suisse announced yesterday the official commencement of its securities brokerage operations in the Philippines, offering its clients access to this key Southeast Asian market.

The foreign group opened a securities broker-dealer license for the Philippine Stock Exchange in Manila this year and will provide sales, trading, program trading and research, as well as research and sales services to clients.

"We are very pleased to launch a full-scale equities operation onshore in the Philippines, underlining our long-term commitment to this important market," said Thomas Maffei, Credit Suisse chief executive officer for Asia-Pacific.

"The Philippines is a key market for Credit Suisse in Southeast Asia, and we see tremendous growth opportunities. This launch further complements the leading equities broker-dealer Credit Suisse has in Asia-Pacific," Maffei added in a statement.

By becoming the first major foreign brokerage to set up in the Philippines stock market for a decade, Credit Suisse will be able to substantially strengthen its ability to serve domestic and international clients there in terms of sales, trading, execution and research, said James Puentes, Credit Suisse country manager for the Philippines.

Credit Suisse has a dominant market share in equities in Asia-Pacific.

In Southeast Asia, it held the largest market share among foreign brokers in 2010 in Singapore, Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand.

The bank has research coverage of 15 Asia-Pacific equity markets and offers sales trading capabilities in 14 markets.

Successful models

By Lennox M. Delaño

TO SOLVE a complex problem, it is important to address the "critical few" addressed for the business principle. This "20-80" guideline suggests that 20 percent of activity accounts for 80 percent of results.

In everyday life, we often notice that 20 percent of the total COMMENTARY will players account for 80 percent of the profits, 20 percent of the sales people produce 80 percent of the sales, and 20 percent of a company's products bring in 80 percent of the revenue.

In addressing the complex problem of our agricultural development, what are the "critical few" things we must do?

Two recommended lists are agricultural master plans and successful models.

Asaguhada workshop

Last March 26, we participated in Part II of Asaguhada Philippines 2010-2020.

Last year, the Asian Foreign Chambers of Commerce (AFFCC) has also done a wonderful job promoting the Philippine Investment Industry (published 2010) with John B. Robles as its principal author. This grassroots publication summarized the key findings of several masterclasses done with local and foreign executives.

Wilfredo Dizon (Asaguhada Master Trainer as well) AFFCC identified seven "critical success" agricultural business process: contracting, creative financing, infrastructure, manufacturing and logistics, training, and tourism, medical travel and retirement.

In the agricultural workshop held last Wednesday, July 24, by Dr. John B. Robles and AgriBusiness Development Secretary Valentin Balaguer, one identified as "critical few" recommendations were formulated.

Master plan

The Department of Agriculture (DA) has been found to be quite adept at tracing quickly its immediate problems. But there is lack of long-term planning.

These agricultural sectors do not know where they are headed. DA can help in this area.

Asaguhada agricultural workshop participants identified the rapid sector to have a good master plan, but possibly has a good and successful one. Identifying currently high quality master plans, which are part business and stakeholder commitment, is one of the "critical few" areas DA should undertake. This is a common recommendation of Asaguhada and the recently concluded AgriBusiness Fubition 2020 conference, which advanced a "Common 36, one shared journey" for 2020.

Successful models

These master plans should include successful models for agricultural development. We should learn from our neighboring countries. The table below shows how far behind we are.

AGRI MULTISECTOR EXPORTS (USD)
	2009	2010	2011	2012
Philippines	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000
Thailand	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000
Malaysia	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000
Indonesia	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000
Myanmar	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000
Laos	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000
Vietnam	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000

In Asaguhada "business recommendations" for "AgriBusiness must update old models and develop new ones. By taking small steps towards to global and domestic markets, large companies integrate the signs and demands, on proving the Philippines can compete."

Actually, proven successful agriBusiness enterprises can be local models showing "best practices" for each sector. An example is the Cebu-based La Frutta model founded by an AFFCC member, James AgriBusiness Secretary James B. Robles. It combines 18 types agriBusiness expertise, product use, education, processing, and marketing that serve as the proper "business" model for domestic production and local and foreign capital to address both the domestic and export markets.

Where are we going? And how do we get there? These plans and successful models largely answer these two questions. They must be included in the "critical few" that DA must immediately undertake. Only then can we see our agricultural development go "Asaguhada Master Trainer to You."

(The author is chair of AgriBusiness Forum, secretary for presidential flagship programs and projects, and former undersecretary for agriculture and trade and industry, for in agribusiness and agribusiness, e-mail agri@agribusiness.com or agribusiness@agribusiness.com)

'Stilettoes for your lashes'

By Anna-Capit
 Contributor

PIANT LINGER ladies has taken the usual two-step process with primer and lengthen! Maybelline Lash Stiletto Mascara combines the two steps, and brings back the convenience and simplicity of just using one tube.

"The Maybelline Lash Stiletto Mascara has the technology which adds length to your lashes (which don't look longer)," said product manager Camille Loring at the product launch last March 15.

"The packaging of the tube is like a stiletto. And, when the Maybelline Lash Stiletto Mascara does for your lashes what a stiletto does for your legs—it lengthens them," she said.

To launch the much-anticipated, Maybelline launched the Philippines' first ever stiletto-run at Robinsons-Mall.

"It's inspired by the stiletto run that starts in Europe, then from New York and Sydney. It's about the growing season...that despite our busy schedule, we can still make it. We will have the stiletto collection? During spring.

Strut, don't run

The tube was only 220-tubes in length, along a mile-long runway. Participants were encouraged to strut rather than run, but just in case, first aid and first aid kits were available.

During the event, the manager, "The tube don't drag. It's waterproof and doesn't peel, so even if you cry and sweat, even from running, it will still look great."

The new five technology powered by Lash, allows easy removal. "Usually, we have problems removing lengthening mascara at the end of the day. But when you can makeup-remover with this, it breaks the mascara into fibers so it's less messy," said Maybelline's chief makeup artist, Anne DeLeonardis, from the product's ultimate success—no look during launch.

The Maybelline Lash Stiletto Mascara has a creamy consistency that doesn't clump during application, perfect for the launch event. It promises up to 70 percent longer lashes, and retails for only P249.

The country's top Pinoy hunk celebrity is now the leading man of my|phone.

Piolo Pascual.

Girls want to be with him. Guys want to be him. And who can blame them? With his disarming good looks and debonair air, Piolo can command a room with his mere presence. He can make a girl swoon in .03 second. He can make your mother wish that you'd take him home to meet her. You get the idea.

It's no wonder my|phone has chosen him as its newest leading man.

For the past three years, my|phone has chosen the hottest names in Philippine showbiz as its endorsers. From the dashing Dingdong Dantes to pop princess Sarah Geronimo and stunning beauty Anne Curtis, now Piolo Pascual joins the cast of my|phone's growing constellation of stars.

my|phone doesn't just choose its endorsers at random though. Each one of them embodies the values and personality that my|phone, as the first Filipino mobile phone brand, has. It's Piolo's talent that inspires millions of Filipinos, but it's his heart that moves them. From his environmental efforts to taking care of children, it's his love for the Filipino that makes him a perfect partner for my|phone.

From the beginning, my|phone has always kept the Filipino in mind by jumping hurdles and leaping bounds to provide mobile technology that Filipinos can afford. From pioneering dual SIM technology, to phones with cameras, video & mp3 functions, to TV, Qwerty, touch screen and even WIFI phones, my|phone has created products that are affordable for Filipinos.

But aside from functions, my|phone has even created content that every Filipino will love. For the religious, audio prayers and an e-Bible. For those that love a good laugh or factoid, trivia, jokes and bugtong are pre-loaded in the phones. For the enterprising, there's my|negosyo, an exclusive app which lets you load and pasa-load at discounted rates. For the kindhearted, there's my|charity, which lets you donate straight to charity from your phone.

When asked about his partnership with my|phone, Piolo smiled and said, "There's a lot to be excited about. I can't say what just yet, but it's definitely going to be Super."

The Filipino supermodel later told us of her much-appreciated guest work: "I asked Oliver what he wanted me to do in that wedding gown. He answered, 'Dance!'"

Oliver, wearing his own custom-made dress of choice, came out with Tracy at the end of the show to say for himself a round dancing on his feet. "I was overwhelmed," said the 2010 Oscars Academy Challenge finalist.
